What can I say? Gotta know my grammar if I'm going to be an author. At first it seemed they were rehashing the material in the first book, but after keeping at it, now I can say what kind of speech any word in a sentence is, whether it's a subject, verb, participle, preposition, adjective, adverb, conjunction, gerund, predicate (verb phrase), participial phrase, or an adverbial phrase.

Second Person in English Literature. In English literature, i.e. English novels and textbooks, the context of the text can be of second person. When the author writes from the point of view of the person that is not him but the one he is addressing, the point of view is called second person. Example: It was dark outside when you suddenly decided to Always use the appropriate tense and remember to use punctuation.

Punctuation is a great way to make your writing clear and fluent. Tip: Always proof-read your writing twice. The first time, look for general mistakes and the second time look for mistakes with the particular grammar point you are studying at the moment.
