Children's literature does not feature much in classical studies, as classicists tend not to distinguish between literature written for children and literature that children happen to read. Nonetheless, classics plays a large part in children's education from the Greek myths read in the primary school to the historical study of the Greek and Roman world, as well as beginners' language courses.

A literary genre is a category of literary composition. Genres may be determined by literary technique, tone, content, or even length. The distinctions between genres and categories are flexible and loosely defined, often with subgroups. The most general genres in literature are epic, tragedy, comedy, and creative nonfiction. They can all be in the form of prose or poetry. Additionally, a genre such as satire, allegory or pastoral might appear in any of the above, not only as a subgenre, but as
